Fish and Game Association Meet

Members of the Coleman Fish and Game Association, at its meeting, held January 29, discussed paid hunting in Alberta and a petition is being circulated among the members to get their views on this matter.

The petition will be forwarded to the annual Fish and Game convention slated to be held in Red Deer on February 4, 5 and 6. Paid hunting would provide game farms where hunters, after paying a fee, could hunt and be assured of killing a specified number of game.

WHITE CANE WEEK

"Today it is a common securence to see a blind man or woman walking down the street with a white cane," said Mr. W. H. Phillips, Chairman of the Alberta Division, Canadian Council of the Blind. "When you meet them on buses, street cars, trains and airplanes, you know that these capable people are sightless and would appreciate a little guidance finding a seat or locating an address."

In his annual message for White Cane Week, February 7 to 13, sponsored by the C.C.B. and The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Mr. Phillips pointed out that the white cane has had a long history.

the white cane has had a long history.

The white cane as a symbol of the sightless, was first introduced in 1921 in Bristol, England, James Biggs, a photographer, who lost his own sight, thought up the idea and found it so successful in his district that he started to tell people about it. He even wrote to other countries. Soon Lions Clubs in Canada and United States became interested.

canata and threet states became interested.

Through the thirties, inventors produced different types of white canes. Battery - powered canes, wheel-equipped canes and others have all made their appearance and been discarded. With the exception of the folding variety,—which fits a purse or pocket—the original simple white cane has proved the most serviceable. In 1991 strips of reflector tape were attached to the cane as a safety measure. The tape lights up brightly in the flash of an auto light and warns the driver.

U.I.C. Report For January and Lose to Taber

For January

Job applicants on file at the Blairmore National Employment Office during the month of January numbered 422 males and 68 females, Most of these applicants will return to former employment as weather conditions permit. During December and January unusually cold weather and heavy snowfalls adversely affected industry. Workers in lumbering and logging lost much time as a result of sub-normal temperatures and heavy snowfalls. Motel and hottowers reported business was unusually slow due to poor highway travel conditions.

Mr. Robertson, manager of the National Employment Office for the area stated there is a supply of experienced workers registered but it is expected a shortage of good workers will exist as the weather improves.

In the female division there is good number of women available for immediate part-time or fulltime employment.

The NES manager also stated be expected the employment picture to remain one of full employment.

ALBERTA BOWS TOWARD TORONTO

The government of Alberta apparently thinks the good people of that province can't have their minds contaminated by printed matter so long as those responsible for publishing it are not residents of Alberta. At least that is the conclusion one must drow from an order in support of the second in Edmonton Last order-in-council, passed in Edmonton last

For years there has been a law in Alberta against advertising alcohol beverages in pub-lications printed in that province, but this edict has never had any control over the flood of such advertising which pours into every Al-berta home in countless publications, which are printed elsewhere and sold in Alberta.

Recently the publishers of the Financial Post of Toronto, made an arrangement to have duplicate copies of the Financial Post printed at Calgary for distribution to subscribprinted at Calgary for distribution to subscribers in the western provinces. This was a happy arrangement which speeded up delivery, and reduced delivery costs, but it met one stumbling block in the form of Alberta's law against liquor advertising. The publishers of the Financial Post were evidently not willing to drop such advertising from the paper so the deal stood or fell on whether or not the law could be chanaed.

It would be unfair to suggest that the government was in any way influenced by the fact that the Alberta company which wished to print the Financial Post has always been warm and friendly to the Manning govern-ment. In any case, the week's order-in-coun-cil changed the law just enough so that the Financial Post with all its liquor advertising may be printed in Calgary and sold throughout the province.

The chairman of the Liquor Control Board is quoted as saying that without the new regulation the Financial Post would have been penalized under the act. The key word here is "penalized".

The magazines and weekly and daily newspapers of Alberta continue to be penalized simply because they originate in Alberta instead of Toronto or some place else. Any appraisal of this situation can only term it the rankest form of discrimination.

It is strange that the laws of Alberta should so blatantly discriminate against the publishing enterprises of that province while protecting ventures of outsiders invading Alberta to do business.

There are times when the law is an ass. -Vancouver Province

Secondary Industry And Employment Opportunities

Opportunities

The Federal government has a real desire to assist in the expansion and development of secondary industry in Canada.

An examination of major factors which have shaped Canada's industrial pattern and affected the growth of secondary industry concluded that the answer to unemployment and balance of payment problems could be found in the development and growth of domestic industry.

Primary industry had been provided with the services of the Department of Mines, Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, but no similar facilities were available to manufacturing; nor was government-industrial liaison proving to be as effective as could be wished.

To overcome these, and other explores the Department of Mines.

or as carective as could be wished. To overcome these, and other problems, the Department of Industry was created to promote the establishment, growth and improvement of Canada's manufacturing industries. Its aims were three-fold:

and to changes in production;
-To assist manufacturing industries that require special measures to develop an unrealized patential or to cope with exceptional problems of adjustment;
-To promote the development

ada and Improve the effectiveness of the participation by the government in industrial research.

To provide for specialized consideration of the needs of the main segments of secondary industry, ten branches were set up within the Department. These are Aircraft, Chemicals, Cotthing and Textilee, Electrical and Electronics, Food Products, Machinery, Masterials, Mechanical Trapsport, Sisberialis, and Wood Products.

Within these ten branches are 33 divisions, each covering a major segment of an industrial group and directing its attention to one type of industry. The branches embarked on a program of detailed studies of the problems faced by the varying sectors of industry. As the studies progressed and greater familiarity was gained with existing problems, the department recommended specific action pregrams to the government.

However from the outset the government realized that government and slow economic growth. Some form of incentive was required.

Some areas in Casada have long suffered from high unemployment and slow economic growth. Some form of incentive was required to induce new and expanding industry to establish bases of operations in these areas to help bring about groster economic blasmore and assist in resisting the steandard of the content of the progression in line with the level enjoyed by the mirer highly industrialized areas.

And so was born the Area Development Agency.

"Normal progression established over the last decade," stated CHSC "indicates a traffic death toll in 1866 of 4800, accompanied by 140, 1000 people injured and an economic loss to the nation of half abilion dollars."

W. Arch Bryce, Council executive director, in a year-end estatement, said, "The motor car served Canadians well in 1864. More than seven million licensed drivers could so testify Of those, 600,000 drove with credit to themselves and with consideration for others."

Mr. Bryce believed the price oaid on our roads and streets was nigh, much higher than necessary.

"As we enter 1965 we can be sure that greater use than ever will be made of the motor vehicle. More than 300,000 new teen-age drivers will seek licences and min-gie with the stream of seasoned drivers. Senior drivers past 65 years of age, pensioned and with leisure, will remain on our roads in increasing numbers."

M. Bryce termed death and injury in road traffic "a tragic waste". He indicated pation-wide plains to islasf Canada's road toil. In co-operation with provincial and local safety organizations, CHSC intends to take drastic steps to stem the steady, apparently invitable sapping of the life blood of the nation, he reported. "The objective is to reduce the rising death toil by 500 lives, not only to hold the actident rate at its present frightening level, but to reduce it."

Mr. Bryce said: "Industry has proven that great factories can complete millions of hours withtout a single loss-time accident. Must society, with the Individual responsible for his own safety, prove less reasonable? Perhaps we don't really care, some of us, whether we live or die. Per-haps we still think that ours is a charmed life. The accident will-happen to someone else! Of Passing Interest

We note that when Sir Winston and Lady Clementine Churchill were married on September 12th, 1908, some of the gossips predicted that the marriage would last less than six months.

Today we wonder if a more successful or happier marriage has ever been consummated.

Which of the partners made the greater contribution to its success. greater contribution to its success.

The answer to that question is of little consequence now Because of its kind and quality that union has stamped the history of the world in our own time, and in the broad flow perhaps for all time to the GROUP AWARD - CAYLEY SCHOOL JUNIOR RED CROSS GROUP Grades 5 and 6, nominated by Mrs. C. Beaton

These enterprising young Albertans have good reason to be proud of themselves - as have the public-spirited weekly envisaper readers who nominated them. This is why we are proud to award special certificates to the nominators of Alberta's Junior Citizens of the Year, Typical qualifications for Junior Citizen Awards are acts of courage, initiative, work done for community, church and in the home since August 1964. If you know a young person between 6 and 16 years (or a group) deserving of special recognition for any reason what-soever, please help them to become Junior Citizens of the Year. Simply give the details to the editor of this newspaper.

Winners selected each year by a panel of Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors. All young people nominated will receive a special certificate of recognition.

Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards are sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies with the co-operation of Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors.

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

A Canadian Problem

Our large country, with a small popula-tion, has special problems. We retain our identity at some considerable expense. We built a transportation system to link East and It is the envy of the world. We developed a broadcasting system even more costly, but it has served our purpose.

We now have another problem. Our Canadian publications are unable to compete with the so-called "Canadian" editions of American magazines, particularly Time and Reader's Digest.

Those two magazines are excellent, but they lap up so many Canadian advertising dollars that our own publications go hungry.

Three years ago the O'Leary Commission came up with a solution to this problem. It was a sensible solution in that it would not put the government into publishing, nor stop American magazines from coming in. The recommendation was simply that Canadian advertisers in such editions would not be able to claim such advertising as a business expense. Thus they would be encouraged to spend their advertising dollars in Canadian media to reach Canadian readers.

Why has Ottawa not acted?

Rumor has jt that the U. S. State Department has pressured Ottawa to ignore the problem, or, if it does act, to exempt the two big magazines already published in Canada.

Unless Prime Minister Pearson is inordinately eager to be curly-haired boy with the State Department, my guess is he will make no exemptions whatever. I believe he will have the courage to implement the O'Leary recommendation and give Canadian publications the assist they need to survive

Canadians have traditionally made such tough choices in the past, and I am convinced they will do so again.
